

PROGRESS RAMBLINGS FROM THE CAVE

Champaign and caviar for everyone. Better make that soda pop and granola bars. Today, our very own Ed, with staggering authority, pressed the green button and commanded the sleeping giant to awaken from decades of slumber and perform a 200 micro-second program.

This invoked wondrous circuits with exotic names such as, but not limited to:

Delta I Cycle	Gated Word Mark	A Reg Latches	B Reg Latches	I Star Restore Gate
Operation Decode	Transfer Program Skip	Modifier Control Transfer	I-E Change
Delta Process	X-Y Core Addressing	Current Drivers	Inhibit Drivers	Sense Amplifiers
	Activate Storage	Validity Check	Parity Check

AND

Execute Eliminate --- Which told the computer to do absolutely nothing.

This worked well, but even the strict task master, Ed repeated it about 1,500,000 more times (5 Min.). The use meter recorded this and I trust the time will be charged to Ed's account.

Burned out IBMers get free process time. GENius people don't.
